The University's Physical Plant is working on a plan to shed some brighter light on campus.

"It's a long-range, campus-wide plan for making certain that we are up to standards with our outdoor lighting," said Carl Cogar, director of the Physical Plant.

Cogar said the process just started and will take several years to complete. He said the changes will be made as funds become available. Old fixtures will be replaced with more modern and closely spaced light poles.

Undergraduate Student Government has worked with the Physical Plant to make sure the exterior lighting meets the needs of students.

Falcons face final challenge in battle for MAC dominion

The BG News

■ Complete pre-game coverage of this Saturday's Falcon Football game against Central Michigan. 17

The Bowling Green football team will attempt to do something Saturday that it hasn't accomplished under the direction of fourth-year head coach Gary Blackney -- clinch the Mid-American Conference title at Doyt L. Perry Stadium.

In 1991 the Falcons locked up the league title with a 17-7 win over Miami. The next season, BG captured the MAC crown with a 28-22 victory over Kent State.

Saturday's game against Central Michigan will be a true test, but the Falcons have a couple of things working to their advantage.

First and foremost is the simple fact that Blackney's squad has been dominant against MAC competition over the last four years, compiling a record of 28-1-2 over this time span.

Secondly, the Falcons have been even more dominant at home during Blackney's tenure. In fact, BG has yet to lose at home in 19 games under Blackney.

"I think from the beginning we have tried to build winning at home as part of the renewed tradition at Bowling Green," Blackney said. "I think if you go back over the last 10 years or so, our winning percentage has been nothing short of phenomenal at home. We've tried to build on geographic terrain. ## Researcher looks at falcons' fate

By Amy Johnson
The BG News

The fate of the peregrine falcon, the animal the University mascot is modeled after, was the main topic of a presentation given Thursday evening in Overman Hall.

"An Environmental Success Story" was presented by Dr. William Mattox, a researcher with the Peregrine Falcon Recovery Project and president of Green-falk Consultants. He related vital information concerning the life of peregrine falcons, which he has accumulated during his research.

Mattox's lecture was sponsored by the University's Center for Environmental Programs and the Environmental Action Group.

Mattox has been working with peregrine falcons for more than 20 years. For the past 23 years, Mattox has been in Greenland researching the life and habitat of the peregrine falcon. The research is one of the longest uninterrupted studies on peregrine falcons to date.

Mattox and other researchers began in 1972 and ended during the summer of 1994.

"The concern of the decline of the peregrine falcon began in 1965," Mattox said. "I became touched by the nature of the bird."

Mattox began the presentation with a slide show consisting of pictures of Greenland and its ge-

Disease invades 'Real World'

MTV character, Pedro, sheds new light on living with AIDS

By Melissa Lipowski
The BG News

Editor's note: This is part four in a continuing series about HIV and AIDS.

Living in a society plagued by HIV and the AIDS virus has forced many to seek education regarding protection and prevention.

Few, however, are able to say they know someone who has suffered from the virus.

Since many are unable to associate either of the diseases with a face, contracting HIV and AIDS has always appeared as something that could only happen to others -- until now.

The MTV program "The Real World" has shed new light on the connection between HIV and individuals.

One of the show's characters, Pedro, who is HIV positive, gives audiences the opportunity to see what it is like to live with HIV. In addition, it demonstrates how a person has to deal with it not only on a physical level, but also on an emotional level.

In this respect, the entertainment media has been a valuable instrument in spreading information about the disease, said Beverly Nathan, executive director of David's House, a non-profit organization in Northwest Ohio providing social services to people with HIV and AIDS.

"If the producers are careful about the facts they present, the program has the potential to be more effective than 100 news shows," Nathan said.

Programming like this, as well as films like "Philadelphia," are educational because they realistically demonstrate the effects of HIV and AIDS, Nathan said.

When an audience comes in contact with an individual who has HIV, they are most likely to listen and learn, Nathan said.

"Most often, when we send HIV-positive speakers out to talk to a group, we find that the audience is always most interested in what they have to say more than just a speaker talking about AIDS and HIV," she said. "When they meet an HIV positive person, they can listen and ask questions, and ultimately come away with more of an education."

In addition, most people are in awe that the person with AIDS or HIV standing before their eyes is a real person, Nathan said.

"It's easy to pigeonhole people when you have not met them," she said. "But when people meet someone who does not look like the traditional stereotype of a person with HIV, like a homosexual, that's when the stereotypes begin to fall away."

People need to be educated on this subject more than once because information changes and new questions arise, Nathan said.

Although there are no local hotlines, there are state and national hotlines people can call. They are important in educating the general public, but they do not educate everyone, she said.

"Those who call the hotlines are usually people who need testing information or those who fear exposure," she said. "The hardest people to reach and the hardest ones to educate are those who think they already know everything about the virus or those who do not want to learn."

In this respect, the best way to educate is through small group lectures in the community and through the schools, she said.

At the University, students are able to receive firsthand information about HIV and AIDS through the course MED Tech 205.

The one-hour course, offered every semester on Fridays from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., was started at the University more than five years ago as a result of a grant fund from the Ohio Department of Health to encourage education, said Betsy Bunner, director of AIDS education and the AIDS education project at the University.

The course is a multidisciplinary class that focuses on increasing student sensitivity and awareness of HIV and AIDS and helps prevent transmission.

E.A.R. to the ground

Today is Veteran's Day, and ROTC cadets have been holding a vigil in the Union Oval since 11 a.m. Thursday in honor of the American POWs and MIAs throughout the world. The 24-hour vigil ends today 11 a.m. Before then, show your support, too. Just stop by and say, "Hi."

E.A.R. Central was very disappointed in the low voter turnout at Tuesday's elections. These politicians, whether you like them or not, are your voice, both at local and state levels.

Less than 10 percent of registered students voted. By not voting, you are pretty much saying you don't care what happens. At least by voting, you are making a statement and speaking your opinion. If you don't, you have to deal with someone else's opinion and can't do anything about it.

The Falcons will play their biggest game of the year at Doyt L. Perry Stadium Saturday. If they win, the team will head to Las Vegas in December.

Since BG hasn't lost in its last 19 home games, the squad can most likely begin to prepare its travel plans.

E.A.R. wants to see the stands packed with cheering fans to watch the Falcons win the MAC for the third time in four years.

Don't forget that the football team isn't the only BG squad playing at home this weekend. The volleyball team will host Eastern Michigan at 4 p.m. Saturday in Anderson Arena, and the hockey team will host Michigan at 7:30 at the Ice Arena. Since none of the contests conflict with each other, we expect to see you at these events.

Unfortunately, the rainy and cold weather is only going to get worse, so bring out the long johns and warm skivvies. If worse comes to worse, we can all huddle together for warmth.

Family Ties make the game of Life

Family. There are many definitions for this extraordinary word. Some see it as friends who will always be there for you. Others see it as their absolute best friends. I still define it as anyone who would drive to Kentucky to retrieve their son from Jeb and Lenny, the two bluegrass jailers who kept asking me to quote the article of the Constitution "that says we have to let you use the toilet."

I love my parents. This was a fact that was driven home to me when I recently attended a Catholic wedding with my them. You know, it's not often my clan journeys out to the steeple. In fact, at times like these when we are forced to attend Mass, we often find ourselves in the back pew, giggling every time the fat 60-year-old priest tells us to "take his body and eat of it."

Weddings are a great thing, anyway. The reception is about the only bar in the world where you can talk with someone for hours on end, really connect with them and later find out you're related.

But anyhow, my parents have made some great contributions to my life. And I think sometimes I start to take that for granted. My dad, especially, has contributed some great ideas.

Like the time when I was 12 and I pulled him aside at a family gathering.

"Dad, can I ask you something?" I asked in a hushed tone.

"Your mom and I, twice a week, Joe, come hell or high water."

"Pretty impressive, Dad, but that's not really what I'm after," I said. "Dad, how do you know when you're really in love?"

My father looked at me for a minute and said, "Well, son, if you could have any woman in the world, who would it be?"

Just like any 12-year-old who grew up in the 1980s, I answered, "Mallory, from Family Ties."

And without missing a beat my father replied, "Joe, you know you're in love with a girl when she makes you feel like 'Nick' for the rest of your life."

I thought this was pretty great advice -- until I called my last girlfriend "Mallory" at the "climax" of our relationship.

My dad and I are closer than ever. My girlfriend dumped me for some Keaton-looking kid named Alex.

Such is life.

But that just goes to show you how your parents will be there for you even when you screw up. And there have been times that I've really screwed up.

The story my mom most often tells took place during my sixth-grade year.

The sixth grade is a really weird time. On one hand, it's the time when you start to become a man. It's the time when you fear standing for the Pledge of Allegiance because parts of you might already be "standing up for the Pledge of Allegiance." If you know what I mean.

It's the time when you start to actively explore just how babies are made.

In sixth grade, I was pretty sure babies came about by peeing on a girl. In other words, (surprise!) my maturity level kinda lagged behind the rest of my classmates. Consequently, my life's goal, at the time, was to purchase the board game "Life."

Why the game of "Life?"

So I found myself in a pre-pubescent quagmire. I figured mom would get over it.

"Dad, Mom said she wants the game of 'Life'," I stated firmly, figuring that I would just make toast in our old toaster while we played my new game.

"She wants maim and strife?" my father asked. He always had trouble understanding me in my sixth-grade year.

"No, the game of 'Life'. It's a board game. They have them at Children's Palace."

Oh, Mom's birthday was not a happy one that year.

"Your mom and I, twice a week, Joe, come hell or high water." "Pretty impressive, Dad, but that's not really what I'm after," I said.

I don't really recall, but I'm pretty sure I thought it would help me score some quiet pee time with the chicks.

Anyhow, since my allowance at this time was only $1 a week, there was little hope of my ever getting to spin the big white wheel.

Until one day my dad came to me and asked, "Joe, I need you to find out what your mom wants for her birthday."

Hoping against hope, I dashed off to inquire of my mother's desires. The answer hit me like a brick.

"A toaster. Tell your father I want a toaster. And make sure he gets one with four slices," my mom said, flattered that my dad thought to ask.

But she got over it, and we've gone on to have a great relationship. Like I said, I wouldn't trade my parents for anyone else in the world.

And by the way, Dad, I know Mom's birthday is coming up. She said she'd be delighted with a keg party in Bowling Green.

ACROSS THE STATE

Cannibalism still questioned

AKRON -- Tests on the contents of a stove pot at the home of a mutilation suspect ruled out human blood but left unanswered whether the man ate parts of his mother's corpse, police said Thursday.

More tests will be done on the thick liquid "goo" found when officers arrested Henry M. Heepe, police Lt. Robert Pfahl said.

Heepe is accused of strangling and dismembering his mother, 77-year-old Barbara Heepe. He told police she was a "vampire devil."

Police went to the Heepe home in Akron Monday to check a report of a person screaming, "Help me!" They found Mrs. Heepe's dismembered corpse and a pot of what they suspected were body parts boiling on the stove.

Police said they suspected Heepe may have eaten some of his mother's corpse. Her spleen, right eye and parts of her stomach and small intestines were missing. Heepe had blood stains around his mouth when he was found by police.

Summit County Coroner William A. Cox determined the pot did not contain human blood.

Mrs. Heepe had been stabbed more than 50 times after she was strangled, the coroner ruled after a nine-hour autopsy Wednesday.

Heepe, 50, has been charged with aggravated murder. His arraignment isn't expected until he is released from Akron General Medical Center, where he was being treated for diabetes.

Heepe confessed to officers and said he had "cut out both of her hearts," police said. Cox said the woman's spleen could have been mistaken for a heart.

Heepe declined further comment and asked for an attorney when officers wanted to know what had become of "the hearts."

Cox said police found Heepe nude in bed with bowel parts tucked between his legs. The coroner said Heepe appeared to be involved in a sex act.

Police have not revealed a possible motive. Neighbors said Heepe behaved oddly at times, and one said he once had exposed himself.

Heepe had a clean police record, according to a computer check back through 1983, said Kelly Warner with the Akron police records division.

Mrs. Heepe was to be buried in a private graveside service.

Wickliffe classes resume

WICKLIFFE, Ohio -- Classes resumed Thursday at a middle school where a former student allegedly killed a custodian and injured three others before being wounded in a shootout with police.

Students were met at the door by Assistant Principal James Anderson, who was wounded in the attack Monday. Counselors were on hand Thursday to help students cope in the aftermath of the assault.

Classes were canceled Tuesday and Wednesday, and no school will be held Friday, school officials said.

Friday had earlier been scheduled as a day for parent-teacher conferences, but those conferences will be postponed so students, parents and staff can attend the funeral for custodian Peter Christopher.

Relatives have said the alleged gunman, Keith A. Ledeger, 37, is a paranoid schizophrenic. Ledeger, a former Wickliffe Middle School student, faces aggravated murder and attempted aggravated murder charges.

Ledeger was wounded in the right hand, right foot, abdomen and buttocks during the shootout with police. He remained in guarded condition Thursday at Richmond Heights General Hospital.

Officer Thomas Schmidt, 47, wounded in the right elbow and abdomen, was in fair condition at Cleveland's MetroHealth Medical Center.

Shop teacher Lowell Grimm, 50, was in critical condition with gunshot wounds in the chest, abdomen and right arm.

Anderson, 51, was treated and released Monday for wounds to his back and buttocks.

University team collaborates

By Genell Pavelich
The BG News

Husband, wife author computer textbook with Toledo teachers

Two University faculty members, who happen to be married, recently completed a computer textbook to help familiarize teachers with the Microsoft Works software system.

Gregg Brownell, director of clinical and computer laboratories for the College of Education and Allied Professions, and Nancy Brownell, a faculty member with the department of Educational Curriculum and Instruction, recently completed "A Mac for the Teacher: Microsoft Works Version," along with two other authors, in order to help teachers learn about how to use computers effectively in the classroom.

While the Brownells, who have been married for 15 years, have different jobs at the University, they have collaborated on projects in the past and are working on on-going projects together, Mr. Brownell said.

"We have similar backgrounds, since we both deal with technology in education," he said. "When we work together, we each bring the different aspects to it."

"We have different perspectives from past experiences which help us bring different ideas together," Mrs. Brownell said.

Mr. Brownell said the text can help teachers realize the advantages of using computers in their classes.

"With this text, teachers get specific skills related to using computers and new technology," he said. "It also uses a lot of examples from their field."

The other two contributing authors are both teachers from Washington Local Schools in Toledo. Jan Metzger, computer specialist for the school, and Carol Youngs, computer services coordinator for the school, collaborated with the Brownells to write the text.

The text is designed to introduce key skills and concepts of computer-related teaching.

Metzger said the text is useful for teachers because the different examples presented are geared toward them.

"This is an excellent resource book for educators and those going into education because it talks about computers in the

Mrs. Brownell also said the text can be very helpful for teachers to use.

Program targets economic growth

By Cristl Ellwood
The BG News

For those students and faculty members with an interest in the economy, the University will present a program on the economic growth behavioral patterns today at 3:30 p.m.

Lisa Rosenberry, assistant professor of economics at the University, will be speaking about her research, which focuses on ways the economy could grow at a faster rate and the changes it is constantly undergoing.

The program will take place in Room 4000 of the Business Administration Building and is free and open to the public.

Through the use of a lecture, slide presentation and a question and answer session, Rosenberry will attempt to define the concept of stationarity.

Stationarity is the factors or underlying variables that do not change in an economy.

There is a need for stationarity to determine economic theories and estimate relationships in the economy.

For example, productivity in the 1700s was much different than the present due to technological advances. Trying to lump the productivity data from the 1700s with today's data would result in a condition known as non-stationarity because there is virtually no comparison, Rosenberry said.

University of Iowa students, staff members fight 'sex act'

By Marco Buscaglia
The College Press Service

Iowa City, Iowa -- University of Iowa professors and teaching assistants are pledging to ignore a policy that requires instructors to warn students before presenting "unusual or unexpected" material in their courses.

The "explicit materials" policy, approved in January by the Iowa Board of Regents, infringes on their academic freedom, professors said.

"The policy creates an atmosphere that threatens academic freedom," said Tom Lewis, a professor of Spanish and comparative literature and founder of the university's Campaign for Academic Freedom. "Something a teacher has taught for years can be called into question because it may offend someone. It's a dubious policy because virtually anything can come under that description."

Teaching assistants have led campus marches against the policy, and professors and students have declared entire campus buildings "policy-free zones."

Faculty members said they won't stop sounding off until the Iowa Board of Regents overturns what has become to be known on campus as the "sex act" policy.

Greek Life members will dance for city rec center

By Meredith Tremain
The BG News

Starting tonight, members of the University's Greek Life will dance the night away and continue into Saturday morning.

C.A.R.E.-A-Thon, a 15-hour dance marathon, will raise money for a Bowling Green recreation center.

"The idea [for the dance marathon] was modeled off Penn State's 72-hour dance marathon," said Christina Belardi, an organizer of C.A.R.E.-A-Thon.

The dance marathon is at Veterans Memorial Building at City Park. It starts Friday, Nov. 11 at 5 p.m. and continues until 8 a.m.

on Saturday.

Belardi said the dance marathon is "open to campus and community."

The C.A.R.E.-A-Thon has several activities planned each hour.

"Each hour is a new theme -- one hour is early 80's, 50's music, line dancing and karaoke," Belardi said.

Greek Life hopes to make the dance marathon a Bowling Green tradition.

"[Greek Life] used to have a Care Fair, but it was not raising a lot of money," said Todd Kleismit, member of Phi Sigma Kappa and publicity chairman for C.A.R.E.-A-Thon.

Both Belardi and Kleismit said they believe the C.A.R.E.-A-Thon will raise more money for the city recreation department than the Care Fair.

"Each hour is a new theme -- one hour is early 80's, 50's music, line dancing and karaoke."

Christina Belardi
C.A.R.E.-A-Thon organizer

"There is no official goal, but my personal goal is at least $3,000," Kleismit said.

Intern candidates Festival offers sample of cultures should apply as soon as possible

By Randy Jaffe
The BG News

"Soon" is the operative word when it comes to applying for summer, spring and fall internships at the University. The opportunities to participate in these cooperative education programs are limited, and positions will fill up quickly in the next couple of months.

Several factors will increase a student's possibilities of gaining the desired internship, said Sandy Schmidt, secretary at the Cooperative Education Program Office.

Because long-distance internships are typically less desirable than more localized openings, University officials encourage applicants to relocate if possible to increase their chances of obtaining a position.

Some companies even pay relocation expenses or assist interns in finding affordable living arrangements near the site of their internship to help ease the strain of moving, Schmidt said.

The best time to start applying for summer internships is either at the end of this semester or at the beginning of the spring semester, Schmidt added. Internship positions have their own deadlines that are set by individual employers. The majority of these positions are usually filled by spring break.

The first step in seeking an internship in any field is to visit the Co-op Office on the second floor of the Administration Building. There, one is required to submit a resume and an unofficial grade transcript, as well as fill out an informational folder to be filed in the office.

Assistance for writing resumes can be acquired from professors and advisers within one's field of study. Unofficial transcripts can be attained through individual college offices by presenting a University I.D.

Following one's initial registration with the Co-op Office, the student is encouraged to come back to the office at least once a week to sign up for all available positions. New internship openings are posted daily on the office bulletin board, so the more often one visits, the more apt one is to find a desirable position, Schmidt said.

Once an internship has been selected by the student, the Co-op Office sends a resume to the employer. Representatives from the company offering the internship visit the campus, and interviews are arranged with the prospective interns. Interviews are usually the deciding factor in determining which applicants receive an internship, Schmidt said.

The University's co-op program is free of charge. Students usually do not receive any class credits while interning, but they do maintain their status as full-time students.

Major companies and corporations from all over the nation sponsor internships on campus. Such names as IBM, Disney, Mead Paper Systems, State Farm and AT&T are regularly featured on the Co-op Office's bulletin board.

Seminar focuses on history, culture of Native Americans

By Heather Cvengros
The BG News

People can relive the American Indian way of life 500 years ago for a day.

The University will conduct a day-long seminar on Nov. 12 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Room 1104A of Offenhauer West. Those with a personal or professional interest will have the opportunity to learn more about American Indians and the heritage of those tribes which occupied Ohio when the first European settlers arrived in North America.

The program, "Ohio Indians - A Multicultural Approach," will focus on a half-dozen tribes including the Delaware, Wyandot, Miami and Shawnee. The program will explain how these early inhabitants worked, hunted, raised families and fought to survive and preserve their lands.

The guest speaker is professional storyteller John Pekarcik, a University alumnus. Pekarcik graduated from the University in 1965 with a Bachelor's degree in liberal arts.

Pekarcik conducts a storytelling class at the University of Akron. Pekarcik travels to different universities such as Kent State University and Cleveland State University to conduct his storytelling, said Edieann Biesbrock-Didham, director of marketing and promotion.

In 1983, Pekarcik gave his first Indian history talk to his daughter's elementary class and discovered that he enjoyed speaking in a classroom setting.

Pekarcik joined a group of Akron storytellers and helped form a new chapter of the National Story League. He speaks at libraries, schools, hospitals, summer camps, historical societies and nursing homes. Pekarcik has studied Ohio Indian villages for the past 15 years. As part of his study, he has collected authentic artifacts dating back 10,000 years. He uses the artifacts to bring the Native-American culture to life.

"I discuss Indians not as skeletons or artifacts, but as real, live, vital human beings," Pekarcik said.

Audience participation is a key part of Pekarcik's presentation. "I have three Indian games to play - 'sticks and stones', 'basket dice' and 'horse race'," Pekarcik said.

In addition to playing games, seminar participants will learn how these early Ohioans used weapons such as spears, tomahawks and bows and arrows. They will also learn how the tribes made use of everything in their environment.

"For example, the fuzz from a cattail was used as disposable diaper material," Pekarcik said.

During the seminar, Pekarcik will tell authentic tribal stories and legends and recommend books that can be used by teachers for class units about Ohio's Native Americans.

Pekarcik said the goal of the workshop is to bring attention to the success of the Native-American culture so it can be passed down to future generations.

"The Indians lived here 12,000 years successfully," Pekarcik said. "What can we learn from their culture to help our children become better?"

The seminar is open to everyone. The registration fee is $50, and the deadline is Nov. 11.

Harvard opens doors to Beavis, Butthead

By Andrew A. Green
College Press Service

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.-- The chances of Beavis and Butthead getting into Harvard seem pretty slim. But Harvard Business School, on the other hand, is no problem.

"Beavis and Butthead," the MTV show about a moronic, music video-watching cartoon duo, was the main case study last week in a second-year Business School class taught by Shad Professor of Business Ethics Joseph L. Badaracco.

The class, "Moral Dilemmas of Management," used the popular show to examine how business interests may be harmful to society. While the topic proved controversial, many students were impressed with the surprising relevancy of the case study.

"I loved it," said student Michael J. Staisil.

Badaracco presented the "Beavis and Butthead" case study to the class, including a description of the show excerpts, information on the growth of the cable industry, some financial information and a brief overview of the arguments in favor and against the show.

Then Badaracco viewed eight minutes of "Beavis and Butthead" excerpts from shows in the last three months.

"In the case of violence on TV, the rights of the producers, creators, investors and cable companies may run counter to those of society by causing it harm," said Head Teaching Fellow Jerry Ussem.

The students debated whether television is responsible for its impact on society.

Republicans take over Congress

Bob Dole, the soon-to-be Senate majority leader, prepares to board his plane Thursday in St. Paul, Minn., after a brief stop during his "Republican Victory Tour."

Incoming committee chiefs lay out agendas, pledge tax cuts

By Alan Fram
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- The man likely to take over the House's tax-writing committee is outlining plans for a quick tax cut -- and talking about ending the income tax altogether. A Virginia Republican says he'll halt a probe of the tobacco industry. Jesse Helms says he'll use his panel to slice foreign aid.

Republicans who will take over Congress' committees next year are beginning to spell out their aims.

President Clinton and now-outnumbered Democrats will resist them on many fronts. But for the first time in 40 years, January will see Republicans at the controls in Congress, better able to advance ideas that Democrats had long consigned to committee corners.

"In a way it is like a dream, but it's a reality today, and we've got to roll up our sleeves," Rep. Bill Archer, who will probably take over the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, said Thursday.

Archer, R-Texas, told reporters he will immediately push to reduce the capital gains tax on profits from property sales, and to trim other taxes on many families, the elderly, people who save money for medical reasons and others. His panel will also try to revamp the welfare system to discourage people from relying too heavily on it, he said.

Archer also spoke of a longer-range goal: "a complete replacement of the income tax," perhaps with a national sales tax. Many Democrats have argued that such an idea could put a proportionately heavier burden on the poor, who must spend more of their income than well-off people do.

A substitute for the income tax should be "the engine that will drive job creation, economic activity, increase the effective income for the people of this country," Archer said.

Other incoming committee chiefs are laying out their agendas, too. They include:

Helms, R-N.C., the conservative who will take over the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He said that he wants to cut foreign aid, that the program "has spent an estimated $2 trillion of the America taxpayers' money, much of it going down foreign rat holes."

Rep. Thomas Bliley, R-Va., who will probably head the Health and Environment Subcommittee. Bliley said he will end Congress' investigation of the tobacco industry because "I don't think we need any more legislation regulating tobacco." Philip Morris USA is the largest private employer in his district, and he received $93,790 from tobacco-related interests from 1987 to 1992.

Rep. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., likely chairman of the House Agriculture Committee. He said he wants to hold hearings on "the fraud, waste and abuse, and the organized crime entrance in the food stamp program."

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., who will regain the chairmanship of the Senate Budget Committee. His panel will try to quickly approve legislation strengthening the president's ability to kill individual projects in spending bills, and will endorse a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget, he said.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who will become chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. Thurmond, who will be 92 next month, will try to halt the slide the Pentagon's budget has experienced since the Bush administration, said spokeswoman Chris Cimko.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, who will displace Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., as head of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee. She said she favors giving the states all responsibility for welfare programs, and in exchange having the federal government pay all Medicaid bills.

Most of the items the incoming chairmen discussed were part of the "Contract With America," the campaign manifesto that many GOP House candidates signed. The document, similar to promises many Republican Senate candidates made, pledges tax cuts, tougher sentences for many criminals, and other steps.

Cable regulators consider raising subscriber rates

By Jeannine Aversa
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- Just six months after implementing a 7 percent cut in cable television rates, the Federal Communications Commission is taking steps that could erode the savings that millions of subscribers expect to receive.

Federal regulators today are considering whether to allow a rise in regulated cable rates to encourage system owners to put on more channels.

Supporters say the plan would give subscribers more for their money and expand their viewing choices.

Since rate regulation took effect last year, systems have added few channels to their lineups, saying regulations discouraged them from doing so.

The FCC's plan would let the nation's 11,000 local cable systems charge subscribers more when they add channels to regulated levels of service. An estimated 59 million households subscribe to cable television.

Regulators were still working out how much systems could charge. Under one option, they would be allowed to charge up to $1.50 a month -- or a total of $18 a year -- over a two or three-year period, said FCC officials and cable industry executives, speaking on condition of anonymity.

In return, subscribers could get at least six new channels.

"That's a good deal," said a cable industry executive, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "You're getting 10 percent more in channels for less than a 10 percent increase in price."

FCC officials were quick to point out that neither the size of the cap nor the time period had been decided. "It is in flux," one official said.

The plan, which would take effect Jan. 1, does not include rate adjustments for inflation.

For months, federal regulators have been trying to figure out how to encourage systems to expand program lineups while not undermining rate regulations, which are designed to save consumers money.

In May, the FCC implemented the second of two rate cuts, after determining that the first set of rate regulations didn't work as intended. The first rate cut, implemented in September 1993, was 10 percent.

A FCC survey estimated that subscribers saved on average $2.18 a month between August 1993 and July 1994 on charges for cable programs and equipment.

For the FCC, trying to protect subscriber savings while encouraging new services has been a contentious and politically charged process.

Two commissioners -- Republicans Andrew Barrett and Rachele Chong -- have been pushing for stronger incentives for cable companies. Depending on the outcome of negotiations, they could end up opposing the plan, industry sources said.

Congress in 1992 ordered the FCC to re-regulate cable rates as a way to save consumers millions of dollars, and congressional proponents of regulation are warily watching the new plan.

Existing rules, regarded as inadequate by the cable industry, permit cable system owners to periodically increase rates to cover a number of increases in business costs, including programming.

Systems are permitted to charge an additional amount per channel, plus a 7.5 percent markup. The increases can be passed along to subscribers.

Another part of the FCC's plan is expected to allow cable subscribers to be charged an unregulated price for other channels added to their systems' lineups.

These channels -- which can be anything not previously carried on the system -- could not be added to regulated levels of service. They must be included in a separate package. In return for the regulatory flexibility, systems cannot move channels currently carried on regulated tiers to unregulated ones.

also presented during the slide show.

"The peregrine falcon is about the size of a crow and is known as one of the fastest flying birds," Mattox said. "The falcons normally rest on cliffs overlooking water."

The peregrine falcon has been cited in skyscrapers of large cities, such as the Commodore Perry Hotel in Toledo, Mattox said. The best time to view the falcons are during the spring. The falcons have also been cited in Dayton and Cleveland, he said.

Audience members commented on issues brought up by Mattox.

"As a geologist, I was very interested in the information concerning the falcons' life in general," said Sheila Roberts, an assistant professor of geology.

One University student said she attended because of the falcons' relation to the University mascot.

"I just thought it was interesting to learn about our school mascot," said Tamara Jimison.

lighting at its brightest.

"Our electric shop replaces the burned out lights on a continuous basis," Cogar said.

Currently, the plant is working on a project to replace the unhelpful to this master plan process that we're just starting with," Cogar said.

Barbara Waddell, public information officer for public safety, said campus lighting is addressed year-round. She said a monthly survey is conducted by University police and USG.

"We literally look at every outside bulb around campus," Wad-brella shaped parking lot lights with more modern lights. The new lights will illuminate more of the ground and less of the sky, he said.

"That's a project that is already underway and should be done by Christmas of this year," Cogar said.

Waddell said the University police receive many comments from students concerning the exterior lighting.

"We do hear a lot of comments about lighting," Waddell said. "We hear from students that think there is adequate lighting and some that don't think there is enough."

Saturday brawl decides it all

BG anxious to get back to Vegas Defense must stop Pruitt's run for title

By Marty Fuller
The BG News

The "Chippies" are on the table for the BG football team as it collides with Central Michigan at Doyt L. Perry Stadium on Saturday to fight for the Mid-American Conference championship and the right to move on to the Las Vegas Bowl.

"I've never been part of a bigger game in all of my coaching career," BG head coach Gary Blackney said. "The whole season boils down to one game."

The Falcons (9-1 overall, 7-0 in the MAC) look to collect their third conference title in the last four years with a victory over the Chippewas (8-2 overall, 7-1 in the MAC).

"This means everything; there's no consolation. If you're in the Big Ten, you're headed to Disney World or some other place. Here, you sit at home and watch everybody play on television," Blackney said.

In his four-year tenure at BG, the Chippewas are the only conference team that has been able to defeat one of Blackney's squads. Last year CMU downed the Falcons in Mount Pleasant, 17-15.

"I don't know if [the loss] is as big a motivational factor as what I said. Everything that we've worked for, all the sweat, all the pain, everything that you put into a football program, comes down to 60 minutes of football between two real excellent teams, in my opinion," Blackney said. First-year CMU head coach Dick Flynn centers his offensive attack around senior tailback Brian Pruitt, who is coming off a record-setting game against Toledo. Pruitt rushed for 356 yards and had 435 all-purpose yards, both MAC records.

Pruitt is the nation's leading rusher, averaging 174.9 yards a game and 6.7 yards per carry. He has rushed for 18 touchdowns and has topped the 100-yard barrier in eight contests this season.

"Brian is an outstanding football player who combines excellent speed with power," Flynn said.

The Falcon offensive attack is centered around junior signal-caller Ryan Henry. Last week against Kent, Henry was 22 of 39 for a career-high 370 passing yards. Henry remains the third rated quarterback in the country in the passing efficiency category.

As a team, BG rates third in the conference in total offense with 410.2 yards a game. The Chippewas are rated second, racking up 415.5 yards per contest.

With two high-powered offenses clashing, it might come down to the defensive capabilities of each team that decides this game. The Falcon defense gives up an average of 308.8 yards a game and is rated first in the league surrendering just 13.8 points a game. CMU yields 349.7 yards per contest while allowing 23 points.

"I'm so excited about this game, I can hardly keep it inside. Two great teams, 60 minutes, winner take all," Blackney said.

The conference title matchup will be televised by the Prime cable network at 12:30 p.m. on Saturday.

The BG News

There is one remaining stop left on Brian Pruitt's run to the Mid-American Conference championship - Bowling Green.

Pruitt has almost single-handedly helped Central Michigan to its 8-2 overall record and 7-1 mark in the MAC.

During the first 10 games of the year, Pruitt has already rushed for 1,749 yards, which is tops in the nation. Last week alone he ran for 356 yards against the University of Toledo. He also scored five touchdowns to give him 114 points on the season, which ties him for the NCAA lead with Colorado's Rashaan Salaam.

Green defensive unit has had a lot of success in holding down the opposition's running attack -- yielding just 122.9 rushing yards per game, which ranks them first in the MAC. But then again, it hasn't come across the likes of Pruitt yet.

"If you want to reduce it to fundamental issues, it's 'Can we contain Pruitt, and can their defense deal with our offense?'"

Gary Blackney
BG head coach

★★★While their teams didn't make it to the championship game this season, some of the other MAC coaches commented on the keys to Saturday's title game.

Toledo head coach Gary Pinkel "I think, obviously, Bowling Green playing at their place, and how well they've done at home, lends itself a little more to Bowling Green. But, like any big game, I think that it's going to come down to turnovers and defense."

Western Michigan's Al Molde "After losing to Ball State, Central has really been on a roll. They have built up a lot of momentum. We haven't played Bowling Green, but I've seen them on tape and they just look like a machine. Every week their running game seems to get stronger, and Henry looks like a magician back there."

Miami head coach Randy Walker

"It looks like both teams are going to score some points with the offenses that they have. Obviously you're going to have to stop Pruitt."

"But on the other hand, Bowling Green just has so many weapons. I guess it's just going to come down to what defense can measure up to the test."

BG Offense

Total yards rushing - 1853
Rushing yards a game - 185.3
Avg. yards per rush - 3.9

Brian Pruitt

Total yards rushing - 1749
Rushing yards a game - 174.9
Avg. yards per rush - 6.7

"Brian's performance was unbelievable," said CMU head coach Dick Flynn. "Our offensive line did a great job, but he just put on one of those great, great performances that you only see once in a while. He's just a great back, as good as there is around."

"His goal that he was really committed to was to play consistently all year long. Having that attitude, he has seemed to elevate his performance every week."

Pruitt is the main reason that the Chippewas have run over opponents to the tune of 286.5 yards per game, the best rushing figure in the MAC and fourth best in the country.

Given all of Pruitt's success this season, it seems obvious that the key to stopping CMU is to shut down Pruitt.

So far this season, the Bowling

"We have to bring him under control, and by that I mean letting him get his 150 yards," Blackney said. "If you want to reduce it to fundamental issues, it's 'Can we contain Pruitt, and can their defense deal with our offense?'"

While both coaches agree that defense will be a significant key to the game, they also both said that Saturday's contest is what they've worked for all season.

"You work all year, and this is what you've worked for," Flynn said. "There's only one thing on all of the players' minds, and that's winning the championship."

Wisconsin tailback arrested

The Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. -- University of Wisconsin tailback Brent Moss, the Rose Bowl MVP, was arrested on a cocaine charge, police said today. Coach Barry Alvarez said Moss has been thrown off the football team.

Moss, 22, was arrested Wednesday night on the city's South Side on a police charge of possessing crack cocaine with intent to deliver, Lt. Jill Klubertanz said.

Moss was carrying four-tenths of a gram of crack with a street value of $50, police spokeswoman Dorothy Doheny said.

"There's nothing for me to do about it other than he's dismissed from the football team, and it lies in the hands of the court right now," Alvarez told WLZR Radio in Milwaukee.

Alvarez didn't immediately return telephone calls from The Associated Press. The school was preparing a statement, sports information director Steve Malchow said.

Doheny declined to elaborate on the circumstances of Moss' arrest. He also was accused of speeding and failing to signal a turn, she said.

A 21-year-old man who was a passenger in a car driven by Moss was arrested on a police charge of delivery of crack cocaine and open intoxicants in a motor vehicle, Doheny said.

Moss remained in custody this morning, Klubertanz said. No formal charges had been filed by the Dane County District Attorney's Office. No court appearance was scheduled.

Powers wants to reestablish winning ways

By John Boyle
The BG News

The Michigan hockey program has been in the 1990s what the Bowling Green hockey program was in the late 1970s and early 1980s -- consistent winners.

The Wolverines have posted four consecutive seasons of 30 or more wins and have won the CCHA regular season crown twice since 1990.

"It's a team that... has really gotten used to winning," BG head coach Buddy Powers said of Michigan. "And that's the thing that we have to reestablish here."

Bowling Green (7-2 overall, 5-1 CCHA) will get a chance to do just that when it hosts the Wolverines Saturday night at the Ice Arena.

Third place Michigan (5-2 overall, 3-1 CCHA) trails the second place Falcons by four points in the CCHA standings. But the Wolverines have two games in hand on BG.

"They're a team with mucho talent," Powers said. "They got a lot of horses on that club. We've got to be at our best if we're gonna take them on."

One of their top horses is Mike Knuble, who just returned to the lineup last Friday against Ohio State after missing four games due to an irregular heartbeat. The nation's leader in power-play goals last season with 21, Knuble had two goals and an assist in UM's 10-2 win over the Buckeyes.

Besides Knuble, Michigan boasts a balanced offensive attack. The Wolverines have five players with at least 10 points this season. Sophomore Jason Botterill, this week's CCHA Offensive Player of the Week, leads the maize and blue with 12 points on the strength of seven goals and five assists.

But the Falcons' offense is even more balanced.

Senior Brian Holzinger leads a team that has five of the top seven scorers in the conference. Holzinger is first with 21 points, followed by Curtis Fry (15), Mike Johnson (14), Kevin Lune (13) and Kelly Perrault (12).

"A lot of guys have contributed to the offense, and that's probably helped us out more than anything this year," Powers said.

The goaltending has also helped out this year. Senior Will Clarke and sophomore Bob Petrie have been platoon all season. Powers was undecided about who would get the nod for Saturday's game.

Both teams are currently ranked in the top 10 in various media and coaches' polls. And coming off a 7-4 loss to No. 2 Michigan State on Wednesday, the Falcons want to show they deserve such praise, Holzinger said.

"There's no question we want to rebound from our loss to Michigan State, and it's a good opportunity for us to do that," he said. "We're a top 10 team in the national poll, and we have to prove ourselves a little bit to prove we deserve it."

★ ★ ★ Perrault and Johnson return to the lineup after serving their one-game suspensions. Both received a game disqualification against Notre Dame and had to sit out Wednesday's game at Michigan State.

Worthy calls it quits after 12 seasons

The Associated Press

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Those gaudy, high-flying days of "Showtime" are over.

Gone, too, are the performers who turned the Los Angeles Lakers into NBA champions and the Forum into Hollywood South.

James Worthy, the last "Showtime" link, is retiring today, ending his 12-year NBA career and completing the final breakup of one of basketball's great acts.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Magic Johnson, Michael Cooper and Kurt Rambis have all retired. Byron Scott now plays for the Indiana Pacers, A.C. Green is with the Phoenix Suns and Pat Riley coaches the New York Knicks.

"I hate to see him go. James was a big part of all the Lakers championship teams," said Sam Perkins of the Seattle SuperSonics. "He deserves a lot of accolades. I spoke to James about it, and he told me he was happy about his decision to come out at this time. I think his decision to come out was the right one."

Worthy, 33, started this season on the injured list because of tendinitis in his left knee and wasn't being counted on by new coach Del Harris to play a prominent role. He left the team last month when his mother died in North Carolina, and hasn't been with the Lakers since.

"With the new Laker system, lots of new players and a new coach, it was a good time for him" to retire, said Perkins, who played with Worthy on the Lakers and on a University of North Carolina team that starred Michael Jordan.

Worthy, a seven-time All-Star and MVP of the 1988 NBA Finals, joined the Lakers in 1982 as the No. 1 draft selection. The 6-foot-9 forward helped lead the Lakers to three NBA championships during the 1980s.

"James was different. Fundamentally, I compare him to Larry Bird as the best fundamental player I've ever seen."

Magic Johnson
former teammate

"James was different," Johnson told the New York Daily News on Tuesday night, when the Lakers lost 117-113 to the Knicks. "Fundamentally, I compare him to Larry Bird as the best fundamental players I've ever seen."

Worthy has two years left on a contract that calls for $12.4 million — $7.2 million this season and $5.2 million in 1995-96.

"The Laker organization has given every indication that should James retire now, they intend to honor the contract fully," his agent, Frank Wheaton, said earlier this week.

Worthy averaged 17.6 points and 5.1 rebounds for his career and leaves as the 54th leading scorer in NBA history with 16,320 points.

Trent and Ohio ready to repeat

Bowling Green's Shane Kline-Ruminski looks to pass the ball during a game last season. Kline-Ruminski and the Falcons will try to overtake Ohio for the MAC title this season.

BG slated for second-place finish by media in MAC preseason poll

By Rusty Miller
The Associated Press

TOLEDO — Gary Trent is back, and so is Ohio University.

The Bobcats, regular-season and postseason tournament champions of the Mid-American Conference a year ago, were an overwhelming favorite to do it again in media balloting Thursday at the MAC's preseason meeting.

Trent, a 6-foot-8, 240-pound junior, is the primary reason. In both his years in the league, he has been an easy selection as the MAC player of the year.

A year ago he led the conference in both scoring (25.4 points per game) and rebounding (11.4 per game). After that season, the big question wasn't whether he could win his third straight player of the year award, but if he would forgo his junior season to turn pro.

With Trent returning, Ohio U. figures to return to the head of the class.

"I'm here because of Gary Trent," Ohio U. coach Larry Hunter said when introduced as the preseason favorite. "This might be to your dismay, but he's bigger, stronger and better than he was last year. ... He will leave his office — the paint — to establish himself in his apartment — the perimeter — more times this year."

The Bobcats, who won their last 13 games against MAC competition last year, return four starters from last year's team that was 25-8 overall and 14-4 in the MAC.

Also back are 3-point-shooting guard Geno Ford (9.4 ppg), 6-4 swingman Curtis Simmons (4.5 ppg) and 7-2 center Jason Terry (5.2 rebounds a game). A strong supporting cast, including Jeff Boals, Mike Reese and Gus Johnson, fills in around the edges.

"We're going to be better," Hunter said. "But realistically, we could be better and still end up in the middle of the pack. It's that kind of year in the MAC."

That's because Bowling Green, which finished second in the conference a year ago and second in Thursday's balloting, has all five starters back from a surprising squad that went 18-10.

Coach Jim Larranaga's team includes proven commodities like 6-8 Shane Kline-Ruminski (17.7 ppg), 6-7 Floyd Miller (9.2 ppg), 6-6 Shane Komives (14.3 ppg), 6-4 Antonio Daniels (12.6 ppg) and the coach's 6-5 son, Jay Larranaga (8.5 ppg).

"One way to judge what kind of league we've got is that we're ranked 11th out of the 32 major-college conferences," the elder Larranaga said. "Another way is to look at the great players we had last year and how many are back. We've got eight of the 10 players named to the first and second-team all-conference teams returning."

Miami of Ohio was the No. 3 pick and has four starters back from Herb Sendek's first year as head coach. Outside marksman Landon Hackim (16.6 ppg) leads the charge. Derrick Cross (10.6 ppg), Jamie Mahaffey (11.9 ppg) and Devin Davis (10 ppg) will occupy three more starting spots again.

Eastern Michigan, led by 6-6 musclemann Kareem Carpenter (18.4 ppg, 9 rebounds a game), was selected for fourth, with Ball State fifth. The Cardinals, on two years of NCAA probation, feature another first-team All-MAC selection in 6-8 Steve Payne. Payne's 20.5 points and 11 rebounds a game were second to Trent in both categories.

In the second tier of the balloting were Toledo, Western Michigan, Kent, Central Michigan and Akron.

The MAC tournament final four will be played at Toledo's Savage Hall March 10-11.

Basketball teams sign new recruits

The BG News

On the first day of the early signing period Wednesday, Bowling Green signed five new recruits — two men and three women — to national letters of intent.

Joining the men's basketball team next fall will be Jake Holmes, 6-10, 240, from Toledo St. John's and Tony Reid, 6-3, 195, who is currently attending Edison State Community College.

Holmes, who will be joining former Titan stars Shane Komives, Jay Larranaga and Denny Amrhein, averaged 10 points and nine rebounds a game last season. He was also a third-team all-city selection for St. John's.

Reid, the player of the year in the Ohio Capital Conference last season, averaged 20 points and 10 boards a contest for Gahanna Lincoln.

The three new women's recruits are Chrissy Billiter, 5-9 from Elida; Jill DeFosse, 6-0 from Hamilton Badin; and Jackie Raterman, 6-1 from Versailles.

Billiter averaged 21.9 points and 4.5 steals a game last year on her way to being a second team All-Ohio pick in Division II. DeFosse, honorable mention All-Ohio in Division II, knocked down 14.6 points a game last season. Raterman averaged 15 points a game in 1994.

Volleyball squad looking to capture tournament berth

By John Glibney
The BG News

The Falcon volleyball team concludes the regular season this weekend at Anderson Arena and needs one victory to propel it into the postseason Mid-American Conference tournament.

The Falcons hold fourth place in the conference, leading Akron University by 2 1/2 games. The top four teams at the end of the regular season qualify for the conference tournament.

BG would have to lose both matches, and Akron would have to sweep their final three games for the Falcons not to advance. Miami University clinched third place Wednesday night with a straight set win over Ohio.

A Falcon win pits them in a first-round battle with league champion Ball State next weekend on the Cardinals' home court in Muncie, Ind.

"We know what we have to do to win," said senior co-captain Jessica Andrasko. "Central and Eastern won't allow us to win -- we'll have to work for it. We know we have to earn a spot and go into the tournament with momentum."

The final home weekend means the end of a brilliant career for Andrasko at Anderson Arena. With family members coming from Amherst, N.Y., Andrasko admitted to feeling mixed emotions.

"I'm glad our last conference match is at home, but it's really sad because it's the last time my family will ever see me play," she said.

Friday night's match against Central Michigan should prove a solid indicator of what to expect from the Falcons if they make the tournament.

The Chippewas enter with a 13-2 MAC record, with both losses coming to undefeated Ball State.

In the first meeting between the two schools last month, CMU handled the Falcons in three games.

"The first game was very close, but we played tentatively in games two and three," said head coach Denise Van De Walle. "Central Michigan had control, and we were continually playing catch-up. We had a hard time building momentum."

Jennifer Shump leads the Chippewas with a strong game at the outside hitter position. Middle blocker Wendy Fast carries an impressive .303 hitting percentage, while Jenny Dick ranks second in the conference in assists per game.

With Parents' Night on Friday and Seniors' Night on Saturday, Van De Walle expects a fired-up performance from the Falcons.

"We are preparing for this weekend knowing we must win one match," she said. "We'll approach the weekend confidently, aggressively and competitively. If we do those three things, you should see two very good performances that result in wins."

On Saturday, BG faces a competitive Eastern Michigan team that took the Falcons to five games in their earlier meeting. Keely Nunamaker paces the Eagles with a conference-leading .333 hitting percentage. Setter Sandy Burke ranks first in the MAC in assists per game.

Besides competing for the final playoff slot, Van De Walle emphasized the importance of entering the tournament on a positive note.

Cavs rally past Milwaukee

By Chuck Melvin
The Associated Press

CLEVELAND -- Mark Price's 3-pointer started a decisive 27-9 run in the third quarter Thursday night as the Cleveland Cavaliers overcame a four-point halftime deficit and beat the Milwaukee Bucks 108-88.

Bucks rookie Glenn Robinson, the top pick in this year's draft, scored nine points on 3-of-13 shooting in his second appearance since signing a 10-year, $68 million contract. He missed all seven of his floor shots in the second half and finished with four rebounds, two turnovers and one block. He was 0-for-3 on 3-point tries.

Milwaukee's Johnny Newman led all scorers with 30.

Seven Cavaliers scored in double figures, led by Price with 18, Bobby Phillips with 17, Tyrone Hill with 16 and Michael Cage with 15. Marty Conlon scored 12 for the Bucks, 10 in the fourth quarter with the game long out of reach.

Cleveland trailed 46-42 at the half and fell behind by seven on Newman's three-point play at the start of the third quarter.

But Price hit a 3-point shot with 10:33 to play in the period, then scored on a fast break before passing to Hill for a dunk. The Cavs went on to outscore the Bucks 37-18 in the quarter and weren't threatened again.

Milwaukee, which had won its previous two games, trailed 79-64 entering the fourth quarter.

CC teams ready for regional qualifier

By Scott Brown
The BG News

Tracey Losi already has a Mid-American Conference championship trophy on the mantel this year. She'll be looking to add to the trophy case tomorrow as the Bowling Green cross country team travels to West Lafayette, Ind. for the Midwest NCAA Regional qualifier at Purdue University.

The women race at 11 a.m., while the men will run at noon. Women's coach Steve Price is taking a full team; Sid Sink will only take a trio of men's runners.

Price is hoping that the full team will be able to move up the ladder from last year's performance. The Falcon women finished 10th in the meet last year.

"We want to improve on that 10th-place finish," Price said. "We would also like to beat four of the Big Ten teams that are going to be there. Most of all, I would like to see us break into the top six."

Losi has "a great chance" of advancing, according to Price. The top three teams at the meet will advance to the NCAA tournament in Fayetteville, Ark. on Nov. 21. After that, the top three individuals not running for either of the qualifying teams will advance.

Michigan, Wisconsin and Notre Dame are all in the Top 20 in the country and should advance. After them, Losi only has to be in the top three of the rest to advance.

"I would love for her to qualify," Price said. "This is another one of her goals for this season."

After Losi, the six that ran at the MAC meet two weeks ago will compete for the Falcons. Kristin Gaddis, Laura Hall, Ranae Strayer, Kristin Lacroix, Beth Stazak and Missy Lyne will all run. Hall finished 23rd overall last year, the third best overall freshman.

Price thinks that the Falcons have an excellent chance of defeating Ohio State, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan State.

On the men's side, Sink decided not to take a full team following the team's dismal eighth-place showing at the MAC meet. Tim Arndt, Rob Bowman and Jason Salak -- the top three at the MAC meet -- will run for Bowling Green.

"I'd like to see Tim and Rob break the top 50," Sink said. "If Jason gets a good race, he'll see the top 75. A lot of strange things might happen in this race."

PLACEMENT SCHEDULE

Bowling Green State University
Career Planning and Placement Services

Campus Recruitment Calendar

For the weeks of:
November 28 & December 5, 1994

Scheduling On-Campus Interview Appointments: Interview sign-ups for the recruiting period November 28 - December 5 will begin with Advanced Sign-up on Monday, November 14, 1994 at 5 p.m. and continue through Tuesday at 4 p.m. Priority Sign-up status may access the sign-up system from 5 p.m. Tuesday through 4 p.m. Wednesday. All registered students may sign-up beginning at 5 p.m. Wednesday. The schedule will remain on-line until 3 days before the organization's visit.

Instructions for accessing The Integrated Placement Sign-up System (You must be registered with Resume Expert Plus)

1. Dial 372-9899.

----- (You will hear:)

2. If you wish to schedule an appointment with a visiting employer, press the 1 key. If you'd like to hear Placement News, press the 2 key. Press the 3 key if you have been pre-selected by an employer. Press the 4 key to access the Alumni VIP Service. Press the 5 key to hear your confirmed appointments. Press the star (*) key to quit.

3. Press 1 to schedule an interview or Press 3 when you have been pre-selected by an employer.

4. Enter your Identification Number.
(The number you used on your Resume Expert Plus disk)

5. Enter the position code for the employer you'd like to interview (this seven-digit number is indicated on the Campus Recruiting Calendar, to the left of the position title).

If you have entered a valid number the system will say:

You have selected (name of organization), if this is correct press the pound (#) key to continue or the star (*) key to choose another organization.

The system will now verify that you meet the requirements, as specified by the employer. If you meet the requirements by the employer, you can proceed. Otherwise, the system will tell you why you are unable to sign-up with the employer. Should you wish to be considered for other openings with this employer, add your name to the Waiting List and submit a copy of your Placement Data Sheet.

6. Press the 1 key for a morning interview, press the 2 key for an afternoon interview, or press the 3 key for the next available time. (Press either 1, 2 or 3).

Once you have selected a time, then you may press the pound (#) key to accept the time, or press the star (*) key to reject it. When you press the pound (#) key, the system will say: "An interview has been reserved for you at (time)." Press the star (*) key to schedule an interview with another organization or the pound (#) key to return to start.

Please remember: If you are unable to sign-up for an interview, you will be asked whether you wish to add your name to the Waiting List. You must also submit a Placement Data Sheet for each Waiting List. We advise strongly that you listen to Placement News to keep informed of changes or additions to interview schedules, or other Career Planning and Placement Services programs.

Cancellation of Interview Appointments: Cancellation of an interview must be reported in person to the Career Planning and Placement Services no later than 5 p.m. one week (7 full days) before the interview day. Complete a cancellation card in the Sign-up Room of Career Planning and Placement Services. DO NOT cross your name off of an interview schedule. Cancellations after this time will be considered a no-show. You are encouraged to consider employers carefully before signing up for interviews.

No Show Policy: Failure to appear for a scheduled interview or violation of the cancellation policy will result in immediate suspension of your sign-up privileges for the next recruiting period. If you do not honor your scheduled interview, you are required to write a letter of apology to the employer for missing the interview, bring the letter with an addressed, stamped envelope, and meet with a staff member before scheduling any additional interviews. Any student who "no-shows" twice will be denied interviewing privileges for the remainder of the academic year.

Notice of Citizenship Requirements: If an employer is willing to interview international students, it will be noted in the position description.

Spotlight Presentations: Spotlight presentations offer valuable information about career paths, detailed position responsibilities and organizational philosophy. All students scheduling interviews are strongly encouraged to attend appropriate Spotlights. Please carefully note dates, times, and locations of Spotlight presentations, as they may vary. For evening Spotlight presentations held in the Career Planning and Placement Services office, enter the Student Services Building using the second floor, patio entrance. Please consult the calendar for appropriate dates, times and locations.

Additional Placement Services: There are important services available to you at the Career Planning and Placement Services. Please note that not all organizations and companies regularly recruit on college campuses. The list below generally reflects the high demand areas in the world of work. Don't become discouraged if your career field is not requested. To assist you in conducting an assertive job search, the Career Planning and Placement Services provides career and placement counseling, VIP professional vacancy hotline, job search workshops, professional development seminars, career fairs and an alumni Falcon Career Connection. The excellent Center for Career Resources offers you career and employer information and current job vacancies in ALL fields. Registered students are directly referred to employers in their desired career fields. Insure your access to these services by registering with the Career Planning and Placement Services in your final year at Bowling Green State University.

INSIDE FALCON FOOTBALL

Five years ago, Ronnie Redd came to Bowling Green with the hope of someday being able to play and contribute to a Division I-A football team. Little did he know that his chance would come about so quickly.

After playing on the scout team during the 1990 season, Redd made a direct impact in the Falcon offense the following year catching 19 passes, six of which went for scores.

"I had a positive attitude coming in and knew that I would have to pay my dues," Redd said. "I was really surprised that I was able to contribute as much as I did that early in my career."

In his first game for the Falcons, Redd didn't make a catch, but he wasn't discouraged. He knew that if he worked hard enough his chances would come.

Four years later, Redd can look back upon a magnificent career that has seen him catch at least one pass in every game but that first one.

"My goal has always been to improve every game and every season, and I think I've done that," Redd said. "If I don't play any more football after I leave here, I can look back and say that I always gave it my best and have no regrets."

"Quotable"

RONNIE REDD

On making the adjustment to college football:

"The biggest adjustment that I had to make was the competition for a spot. In high school your spot was sealed and solid and you really didn't have to look over your shoulder.

"In college they're bringing guys in every year to replace you, and they're all good guys. Everybody is either All-City, All-State or even All-American. The biggest adjustment came in keeping myself at the top of my game at all times."

On his consecutive games with a catch streak:

"I don't think about it as much now as I did toward the end of last season and the beginning of this one when people started talking about it. Now it doesn't really cross my mind anymore. I've tried to put it out of my mind and just go out there and play."

On his own game:

"I think that I've become a more complete receiver over the last year. I think I've improved my game to where I can do a lot of different things now and be successful. Whether it's coming over the middle and making the tough catch on third down, or getting behind guys for the deep ball."

On gaining over 100 yards as a rusher:

"I've always expressed an interest in running the ball. I guess up until this year there has always been someone else to do it. I'm really happy that [the coaches] have the confidence in me to take the reverse - it's a compliment.

"It's something that I've always wanted to do and I have a lot of fun doing it. I hope they keep giving me the ball when they can."

Description of play and responsibilities:

"This is a play that we call 'cougar.' It's been a favorite play of mine, and we've had some pretty good success with it this season. It's basically a play-action pass where I'm running a post over the top and Rameir is going to run an in over the middle.

"Basically what we're doing here is trying to work on the safety. With me running the post, I'm hoping to take the safety out with me so Rameir is open on the dig. But if the safety comes up, Ryan [Henry] can hit me with the deep ball. I've caught two or three touchdowns on this play this year."
